Plot to Kill Bush Alleged

Falls Church man accused of conspiring with al Qaeda

ALEXANDRIA, VA. | A Northern Virginia man was charged Tuesday with plotting with al Qaeda to kill President Bush in a conspiracy prosecutors said was hatched while the man studied in Saudi Arabia.

Ahmed Omar Abu Ali, 23, a U.S. citizen who grew up in Falls Church, had been held without charges in Saudi Arabia since June 2003. He was returned to the United States and made an initial appearance in U.S. District Court shortly after his arrival.

He did not enter a plea but contended he was tortured while detained in Saudi Arabia and offered through his lawyer to show the judge his scars. "It's all lies," his father said of the charges, and his lawyer said he would plead not guilty.

Before the indictment, a lawsuit filed on behalf of Abu Ali claimed U.S. officials had Saudi authorities detain him so he could be harshly interrogated. Federal prosecutors have fought attempts to get the government to disclose why he was being held in Saudi Arabia.

Abu Ali

According to the indictment, Abu Ali discussed Bush-assassination plans with an unidentified al Qaeda member in 2002 and 2003, while Abu Ali was attending college in Saudi Arabia.

They discussed two scenarios, the indictment says: one in which Abu Ali "would get close enough to the president to shoot him on the street" and, alternatively, "an operation in which Abu Ali would detonate a car bomb."

The indictment also states that Abu Ali received a religious blessing from another unidentified conspirator to assassinate the president. A detention hearing is scheduled for Thursday. MATTHEW BARAKAT (AP)

GAMBLING

Attn: Those Handling The National Debt

Blumberg, Germany, is banking on the national lottery to fill a large gap in its finances, the Deutsche Presse-Agentur newswire reported. Some officials are using their own money to cover the cost of tickets for a twice-weekly, seven-number draw, having signed an oath that any winnings will go to the city. Expectations of a big win can "naturally not be factored into the community finances," for legal reasons, lawyer Birgit Friederich said, but winning just a few million dollars would bring the city relief. Thomas Lauble of the financial office, the official responsible for the lottery tickets, said city officials came up with the plan in 2001 while meeting in a pub. (EXPRESS)

Now the FBI Can Stop Investigating

Jack Cramer of Sacramento was rummaging through piles of old stuff recently when he ran across a $1 parking ticket he received while he was a college student in Flint, Mich. Its date: July 26, 1954, a month before he moved away permanently. "I thought, 'What if they're still trying to collect this?'" Cramer said. He called the Flint Police Department's traffic division to inform it of his find and pledged to cover his outstanding debt. He mailed the $1 along with the ticket, no interest included. (AP)

A historic coffeepot-shaped luncheonette in Bedford, Pa., is adrift. The 1927-era Koontz Coffee Pot (above, pre-renovation) was donated to Bedford County Fair Board, which spent thousands to fix it up. Now, the board's not sure what to do with it. "If people have suggestions, we're open to them," said board president John Holbert. (AP)

SALVAGE 30-Year Hobby Finally Pays Off

A metal detector enthusiast in Britain struck gold after finding an ancient necklace that may be worth more than $190,000, the BBC reported. Maurice Richardson, 55, said he first thought he'd found nothing more than a piece of scrap metal on Feb. 5, when he came across the twisted, 1.5-pound necklace in a plowed field on a farm near his home in Newark. But after a nervous half-hour of extraction, the gold torque "shone; it was solid and perfect in every way," like he had just bought it, he said. An official who assessed the artifact's current estimated value is expected to open a treasure-trove inquiry into the discovery. Richardson said that in more than 30 years of metal detecting, he has never found anything worth more than $190. The necklace is now at the British Museum, where it is undergoing further examination and will be revalued. (EXPRESS)

High Court to Review Suicide Law

Justices agree to hear Ore. Death With Dignity Act challenge

WASHINGTON | The Supreme Court said Tuesday it will hear a challenge to the nation's only assisted suicide law, taking up the Bush administration's appeal to stop doctors from helping terminally ill patients die more quickly.

Justices will review a lower court ruling that said the U.S. government cannot sanction or hold doctors criminally liable for prescribing overdoses under Oregon's voter-approved Death with Dignity Act. Since 1998, more than 170 people — most with cancer — have used the law to end their lives.

Former Attorney General John Ashcroft filed the appeal last November, on the day his resignation was announced by the White House. He argued that physician-assisted suicide is not a "legitimate medical purpose" and that doctors take an oath to heal patients, not help them die.

Oregon lawyers counter that regulation of doctors generally has been the sole responsibility of states. The U.S. attorney general has no authority under the federal Controlled Substances Act to punish doctors because Congress intended the law only to prevent illegal drug trafficking, they say.

A panel of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals sided with Oregon last May.

Arguments will be heard in the court's next term, beginning in October. HOPE YEN (AP)

ALBANY, N.Y. | More than six in 10 voters say they believe the United States is ready for a female president, a poll found.

The poll, conducted last week by the Siena College Research Institute and sponsored by Hearst Newspapers, also found that 81 percent of people surveyed would vote for a woman for president and 53 percent think New York Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton should try for the job.

On the Republican side, 42 percent of voters said Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice should run for the White House and 33 percent named North Carolina Sen. Elizabeth Dole. (AP)

Schiavo Case Still on Hold

Legal tug-of-war continues over Fla. woman's feeding tube

DUNEDIN, FLA. | The case of a severely brain-damaged woman remained locked in a legal stalemate Tuesday after an appeals court cleared the way for her husband to remove her feeding tube only to see a judge promptly block the removal for at least another day.

The 2nd District Court of Appeal offered no specific instructions in a one-page mandate issued in the case of Terri Schiavo, who was left brain damaged 15 years ago. That meant her husband, Michael Schiavo, could order his wife's tube be removed.

But Pinellas Circuit Court Judge George Greer issued an emergency stay about an hour later blocking removal of the feeding tube until 5 p.m. Wednesday. Greer, who has been overseeing the long-standing dispute, scheduled a hearing on the case for Wednesday.

Terri Schiavo

The parents, Bob and Mary Schindler, sought the stay in order to file additional legal pleadings. They are trying to oust their son-in-law as her guardian and seeking medical tests which might back their assertion that their daughter has some mental capabilities.

It would likely take several days for Terri Schiavo to die if the tube is pulled.

The appeals court's mandate allowed Michael Schiavo to act under previous court rulings in the years-long legal battle.

Study: Diesel to Blame for Deaths

WASHINGTON | Emissions from old diesel engines cause more than 20,000 Americans a year to die sooner than they would have otherwise, an environmental group estimated Tuesday.

An industry group criticized the findings as outdated and misleading.

The group said it based its figures on government emissions data from 1999 and from public health studies on air pollutants. (AP)

Man Charged With Murder of Missing Texas Woman, Son

FORT WORTH, TEXAS | A man was arrested and charged Tuesday with murdering his pregnant ex-girlfriend and her 7-year-old son, who disappeared from their home over the weekend.

Hours after the arrest, authorities found two bodies matching the description of bagel shop owner Lisa Underwood and her son, Jayden, authorities said.

Stephen Dale Barbee, 37, admitted arguing with Underwood over leaving his wife, according to court papers. Barbee allegedly said he suffocated Underwood, then did the same to the boy after he interrupted the attack.

Court papers said Barbee was the father of Underwood's fetus.

Barbee was arrested in Tyler, where he had been working clearing trees. (AP)

Earthquake in Central Iran Kills 420

SARBAGH, IRAN | Under a cold, driving rain, survivors wailed over the bodies of the dead and dug through the ruins of mud-brick houses searching for their loved ones after a powerful earthquake flattened villages in central Iran on Tuesday, killing at least 420 people.

The toll was expected to rise, because rescue teams did not have a final count from the three most isolated villages in the mountainous region. About 30,000 people were affected, many left homeless when some villages were reduced to piles of dirt and stone by the magnitude-6.4 earthquake. The number of injured was estimated at 900.

"Where have you gone? I had a lot of plans for you," Hossein Golestani sang softly as he held the lifeless form of his 7-year-old daughter, Fatima. The body of his 8-year-old daughter, Mariam, lay beside him in the devastated village of Hotkan.

Some 40 villages were damaged in the quake, which struck at 5:55 a.m. in a region 150 miles from Bam, site of a devastating earthquake in December 2003 that killed 26,000 people and leveled the historic city.

Bush Presses European Allies on China Arms Ban

French, German leaders say embargo should go

BRUSSELS, BELGIUM | President Bush and European leaders settled simmering differences about Iraq but plunged into a troublesome new dispute over the lifting of an arms embargo against China. Bush warned that the U.S. Congress might retaliate should Europe revoke the 15-year ban.

At a speech Tuesday following a NATO summit, Bush said lifting the embargo "would change the balance of relations between China and Taiwan." Still, French President Jacques Chirac and German Chancellor Gerhard Schroeder said the ban should go. It was imposed after the bloody 1989

Tiananmen Square crackdown on pro-democracy activists.

Before Bush's trip, Congress sent a clear warning to Europe about lifting the arms embargo. In a resounding 411-13 vote, the House said revoking the ban would endanger both Taiwan and U.S. troops stationed in Asia and would harm U.S. relations with Europe. U.S. officials also have warned that Congress may curtail the transfer of sensitive defense technology to EU countries if the ban is lifted.

The European nations "need to make sure that if they do [lift the ban], they sell it to the U.S. Congress," Bush said. (AP)

Al-Jaafari Likely To Be Iraq's PM

58-year-old physician tapped by Shiite party as candidate for post

BAGHDAD | Ibrahim al-Jaafari, the head of a religious party who fought Saddam Hussein and took refuge in Iran for a decade, was chosen Tuesday as the dominant Shiite ticket's candidate for prime minister — making him the overwhelming favorite for the post.

Al-Jaafari's selection came after former Washington ally Ahmad Chalabi dropped out of the race following three days of bargaining. Al-Jaafari has been seen as having close ties to Iran's ruling clergy, though he denies any links.

But al-Jaafari must now build a ruling coalition and win agreement from the Kurds and others on candidates for Cabinet posts and the largely ceremonial presidency before seeking the support of a majority of the National Assembly elected Jan. 30.

It may not be easy for the 58-year-old physician from the Shiite holy city of Karbala. He'll have to meet conflicting demands from Kurds, Sunni Arabs and Islamic hard-liners within his United Iraqi Alliance.

Iraq's secular Kurds and many Sunnis worry that al-Jaafari will try to impose his Dawa Party's brand of conservative Islam on the country, particularly because the assembly will be charged with writing a new constitution.

al-Jaafari told the AP last week that Islam should be the official religion of Iraq "and one of the main sources for legislation, along with other sources that do not harm Muslim sensibilities."

He skirted his party's official position, which explicitly urges for the "Islamization" of Iraqi society and the state. "Theory is different from practice," he said. (AP)

Bush Insists U.S. Isn't Preparing For Attack on Iran

BRUSSELS, BELGIUM | President Bush said on Tuesday that it is "simply ridiculous" to assume the United States plans to attack Iran over its alleged nuclear weapons program.

"This notion that the United States is getting ready to attack Iran is simply ridiculous," Bush said after discussing the issue with European allies here. "Having said that, all options are on the table."

Europe is trying to persuade Iran to abandon its uranium enrichment program in return for technological, financial and political support. The United States, reluctant to reward Iran, has refused to get involved in the bargaining and has suggested asking the United Nations Security Council to impose sanctions. (AP)

Queen Bows Out of Charles' Wedding

Palace insists absence isn't a snub; she'll still attend church blessing

LONDON | Buckingham Palace said Tuesday that Queen Elizabeth II would not attend the civil marriage ceremony of her son Prince Charles and Camilla Parker Bowles — but that her absence should not be interpreted as a snub.

The monarch will attend the church blessing at Windsor Castle after the April 8 civil ceremony in the local town hall and will host the wedding reception at the castle.

"The queen's prime concern is that the civil ceremony should be as low key as possible, in line with the couple's wishes," a palace spokeswoman said. "Clearly if the queen were to attend, the occasion would no longer be, by definition, low key."

"The queen is attending the service of dedication and paying for the reception — this is not a snub," she said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The palace spokeswoman could not say whether the queen's husband and Charles' father, Prince Philip, would attend the civil ceremony.

The civil ceremony, which will be followed by a blessing led by Archbishop of Canterbury Rowan Williams, is designed in part to allay concerns of Anglican traditionalists. The Church of England — of which Charles will become titular head when he takes the throne — traditionally frowns on church remarriages for divorcees whose spouses are still alive.

Charles, 56, divorced Princess Diana in 1996 and she died in a car accident the next year. Parker Bowles, 57, also is divorced, and her ex-husband is living.

Rebels Withdraw Demand For Independence at Talks

Aceh rebels withdrew demands of independence for their tsunami-devastated province during meetings in Finland with the Indonesian government Tuesday, paving the way for more negotiations, a member of the rebel delegation said.

The decision doesn't mean an immediate end to the fighting that has plagued Aceh since 1976 and left tens of thousands of people dead. Officials have said that more talks will be needed to come to a final agreement. The talks resulted from intense international pressure to make peace after Aceh bore the brunt of the Dec. 26 tsunami. ### U.S. Group Blasts Egypt Over Detentions in Sinai Bombings

The Egyptian government has shown a "shameless" lack of accountability by failing to name the 2,400 people it detained for the Oct. 7 bombings at the Sinai resorts of Taba and Ras Shitan, New York-based Human Rights Watch said Tuesday. A 48-page report by HRW said the government has neither released the detainees' names, nor told their families where they are, nor said if they have been charged.

A Foreign Ministry statement said the government would "study all the points" in the report and said "any proven violation will be dealt with according to Egyptian laws." (AP)

Famed Novelist Cabrera Dies

Cuban-born novelist Guillermo Cabrera Infante, regarded as one of the most original voices in 20th-century Spanish literature and an outspoken critic of Fidel Castro, has died in London. He was 75. Cabrera died in a hospital Monday from septicemia, said a spokeswoman for his literary agents.

Cabrera won the 1997 Miguel de Cervantes prize for literature, the most prestigious literary award in the Spanish-speaking world. His most famous novel, "Three Trapped Tigers," an account of Havana nightlife before Castro came to power, was published in 1967. (AP)

Brazilian Leader Blames Loggers For Nun's Death

BRASILIA, BRAZIL | Brazil's president promised Tuesday to crack down on loggers in the Amazon jungle and the hired gunmen who enforce their will — the reputed killers of an American nun who defended the rain forest and its poor settlers.

President Luiz Inacio Lula da Silva blamed loggers for the Feb. 12 killing of Dorothy Stang, 73. Silva said Stang's shooting was "planned by businessmen of the logging sector, revolted by our policies" to control the state of Para. But the days of impunity are over, he said.

"Anyone who wants to cut timber will need permission from the Brazilian state," Silva said in a speech in Campo Grande. "We're going to put an end to this practice of businessmen ... hiring gunmen and killing organized rural workers. Brazil is not a no-man's-land." (AP)

Dow Sinks Amid Spike in Oil Prices

Drop of 174 points is biggest single-day decrease since 2003

NEW YORK | A nearly 6 percent spike in crude oil prices sent stocks plunging Tuesday, as investors already concerned about rising prices and inflation envisioned a repeat of last summer's selloff on Wall Street. The Dow Jones industrial average dropped 174 points, its biggest point drop since mid-2003.

Weakness in the dollar — which fell sharply against the Japanese yen and lost ground against other currencies — helped send crude futures soaring past $51 per barrel, much as they did during the third quarter last year, when the major stock indexes fell to multiyear lows. A barrel of light crude settled at $51.15, up $2.80, on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

The surge in crude futures sparked fears that the stock market would tumble further. That overshadowed strong earnings from Dow component Home Depot Inc. and intensifying merger talks between Federated Department Stores Inc. and May Department Stores Co.

The Dow fell 174.02, or 1.61 percent, to 10,611.20, its lowest close since Feb. 3. It was also the biggest one-day point drop for the Dow since May 19, 2003.

Broader stock indicators also fell substantially. The Standard & Poor's 500 index was down 17.43, or 1.45 percent, at 1,184.16, its lowest level since Jan. 31, and the Nasdaq composite index dropped 28.30, or 1.37 percent, to 2,030.32, its worst close since Jan. 25.

Omnimedia Tidies Up for Martha Stewart's Return

Company rebounding as founder's stint in prison nears its end

NEW YORK | When Martha Stewart is released from prison March 6, the doyenne of domesticity will return to the multimedia company she founded which faces a much brighter outlook than when she was convicted of lying about a stock sale only a year ago.

Back then, Martha Stewart Living Omnimedia Inc.'s future looked gloomy. Stewart's TV show was placed on hiatus. The company's stock dropped 23 percent, hitting $10.86 on March 5, 2004, the day of her conviction, and sank further over the next few days. Some even predicted the death of the brand.

But that was the bottom.

Martha Stewart Living's stock has more than tripled, while Stewart herself is poised to return to the airwaves with a revision of her daily homemaking show and a version of Donald Trump's "The Apprentice."

But while Martha Stewart Living Omnimedia is showing signs of a comeback, the question is whether the recovery can be sustained. Also, how the former CEO will remake her image and what role she will carve out when she returns remains to be seen. ANNE D'INNOCENZIO (AP)

Court Debates TV Anti-Piracy Rules

WASHINGTON | A U.S. appeals panel on Tuesday challenged new federal rules requiring certain video devices to have technology to prevent copying digital television programs and distributing them over the Internet.

U.S. Circuit Judge Harry

T. Edwards said the Federal Communications Commission "crossed the line" requiring the new anti-piracy technology in next-generation television devices. But another judge on the panel questioned whether consumers can challenge the FCC's rules in the courtroom.

The technology, known as the broadcast flag, will be required after July 1. It would permit entertainment companies to designate programs to prevent viewers from copying shows or distributing them over the Internet. A decision could come within months. (AP)

Current Smokers

Georgetown University and the University of Maryland are conducting a research study of smokers in Baltimore and the District of Columbia to see:

- whether genes or genetic factors influence how persons smoke cigarettes, and
- if the way a person smokes cigarettes causes some of the immediate harmful effects of smoking.

To be eligible, volunteers must:

- Smoke at least 10 cigarettes per day,
- Have been a smoker for the last 5 years, and
- Be 18 years of age or older.

In this study, an interviewer at Georgetown University will:

- ask volunteers questions about medical history, diet, exercise, family and smoking history;
- ask volunteers to smoke 2 of their cigarettes;
- take blood, urine and mouthwash samples
- measure chemicals in the volunteers' breath; and
- reimburse volunteers $75

Kids: Bus Driver on Phone

Pr. George's students make accusations after morning crash

TEMPLE HILLS, MD. | A school bus tumbled 25 feet down an embankment Tuesday, after several students said the driver answered a call on her cell phone. Thirty students and the driver were treated for what authorities said were relatively minor injuries.

"Her cell phone rang. She ducked down, got her cell phone, started talking on her cell phone, and she only held one hand on the wheel. Then she lost control of it," said student Markeisha Knight.

Police said the bus hit a pole when it tumbled off a curvy stretch of Temple Hill Road, but stayed upright when it came to a stop.

Prince George's County Public Schools officials said the crash happened as the bus was heading to Thurgood G. Marshall

Everyone aboard was brought to Southern Maryland Hospital Center in Clinton. Parents rushed to the hospital to see their children, and several were angry when they heard the cell phone accusations. "I'm really disturbed about it," said

Pamela Steed. "I just assume that maybe — hopefully — it was a call that was important enough."

The unidentified driver was charged with negligent driving and failure to keep to the right side of the road. She was placed on administrative leave. (AP)

Brentwood Worker Suspects Cover-Up

WASHINGTON | Employees at a U.S. postal facility that processed anthrax-laced letters told researchers they failed to get adequate information during the 2001 attacks, several comparing themselves to blacks who were denied treatment during the government's notorious Tuskegee experiments.

A Rand Corp. study released Tuesday found public health officials gave "very little useful information" to employees at Brentwood postal facility and the U.S. Senate who might have been exposed to anthrax spores.

"I made it plain that I thought it was a cover-up," said an unnamed Brentwood employee who participated in the Rand study. "Because the government's done it before. They did it with syphilis."

Government researchers withheld syphilis treatment from 399 black persons in the Tuskegee experiments of the 1930s, causing 128 related deaths. (AP)

The European egg on wheels prepares to make its U.S. debut

ROAD TEST | Keebler elves everywhere are holding their tiny breaths for the arrival of the Smart, the adorable European nano-car. Potential buyers must wait no later than June, said Steve Schneider, CEO of Zap, which sells the Americanized versions. Zap is waiting for certification before selling them in five states.

The Smart City Coupe — the iPod of personal mobility — is small in a big way. The stumpy, ovoid runabout can actually park perpendicular to the curb — at last, help for the parallel impaired. It is also a fraction of the weight of other vehicles. But, on freeways, how smart is that?

"This car is very strong, very safe," said Thomas Heidemann of Smart Auto LLC, which imports the car and modifies them for sale. The Smart has standard dual air bags, anti-lock brakes and electronic stability control, and — with its "Tridion" safety cell structure — survived brutal crash tests. Volunteers? Anybody?

With a top speed of 85 mph, the Smart City Coupe won't win any drag races.

"If safety is your top priority, you shouldn't be in a small car," said Russ Rader of the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety. To meet the side-impact standard of U.S. crash tests, the Smart's doors are reinforced with aluminum cross beams.

Smart cars are hilarious fun to drive in city traffic, able to wend through openings in contentious traffic almost like a motorcycle. They are less fun on the highway.

The Smart is a fashion statement, Wes Brown, a consumer analyst, said. "It says that the owner is a little different, a little more European in their thinking, more cultured, more sophisticated."

No Word Is Angry Star's Bond

After reporting to spring training, Bonds skips steroid questions

BASEBALL | Barry Bonds angrily sidestepped questions about his role in baseball's steroid scandal upon his arrival at spring training Tuesday, pronouncing himself weary but ready to begin his pursuit of Hank Aaron's home-run record.

In the 40-year-old Bonds' first public comments since his grand jury testimony was leaked to the San Francisco Chronicle and reported in December, he had nothing to say about it, citing legal constraints. But he had harsh words for the media and fans still consumed by the circumstances of his record-setting home run binge.

"You guys are like re-running stories," Bonds told reporters. "This is old stuff. It's like watching 'Sanford and Son.'"

Bonds repeatedly refused to speak directly about the BALCO scandal, but he castigated everyone from the media to Jose Canseco, whose book described a culture of steroid abuse in baseball. "I don't know Canseco, besides hello and goodbye. I don't put any weight into what he says," Bonds said. JANIE McCUALEY (AP)

Priest Pleads Guilty in Death of Ex-Md. Teen Star

A priest pleaded guilty and was sentenced to probation Tuesday for giving alcohol to a University of Pittsburgh football player who died after falling through a church ceiling while drunk. The Rev. Henry Krawczyk was the only adult at a cookout he hosted in the hours before the death of Billy Gaines, 19, a former high school star from Ijamsville, Md. A witness said Gaines had eight glasses of rum and Coke plus a shot of liquor at the party, held on church grounds. (AP)

Nats prospect puts positive steroid test in past

NATIONALS | Even though Terrmel Sledge wasn't punished by Major League Baseball when he tested positive for steroids two years ago, the damage to his reputation was more than enough to drive the point home.

"It hurt my family when that came out," the Washington Nationals outfielder said in an interview at training camp. "And I'll never put them through that again."

Steroids talk is ubiquitous throughout spring training camps this year — except among the Nationals, whose excitement over the move to a new city overwhelms all other topics. Sledge is one player well suited to offer some perspective.

Sledge, who had a promising rookie season with the Expos last year, tested positive for a steroid found in an over-the-counter medicine during a training camp for the U.S. Olympic team in October 2003. He was banned from international competition for two years, but he was not sanctioned by Major League Baseball because penalties for steroid use did not take effect until last year.

Sledge maintains he didn't know the medicine contained steroids. "It was an honest mistake," he said.

Sledge said he supports the tougher punishments for steroid use that will take effect this season because they will "level out the playing field" and force players to play "with the talent we're born with."

If Sledge's practice routine is any indication, he seems determined to hone his natural abilities. He was the last player off the field during a workout last week, departing at least a half-hour after most of his teammates.

"What got me here was hard work," said Sledge. JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

O's Lose Julio With Forearm Injury

ORIOLES | Baltimore Orioles reliever Jorge Julio has been sidelined with a strained right forearm, an injury that could force him to miss the regular-season opener and definitely hinders his chances of winning the closer's job out of spring training.

Julio has inflammation of the flexor muscle and will be placed on a rehabilitative throwing program the next three weeks. The Orioles hope to have the right-hander back on the mound in the middle of their exhibition schedule.

Julio dealt with the injury last season, when he recorded 22 saves in 26 chances and went 2-5 with a 4.57 ERA.

He lost his job as Baltimore's stopper in September, giving way to left-hander B.J. Ryan, but hoped to regain the position this spring. Now it appears Ryan will win the job by default.

Orioles manager Lee Mazzilli, however, believes Julio still has a shot to make the opening day roster as the closer. "I fully expect him to be ready by opening day," Mazzilli said. (AP)

1-28 Va. squad takes on Wake Forest while building D-1 program

COLLEGE HOOPS | A 1-28 record, 17 losses in a row and a visit to No. 6 Wake Forest on the immediate horizon would cause most coaches to lose sleep and send their athletic directors looking for new coaches.

But at Longwood University, a small school of 4,300 students about an hour from Richmond, the reverse is true: Mike Gillian's sleeplessness is excitement-driven, and the athletic director knows he has the right man.

"To say we're going through a tough season would be the under-statement of the year," athletic director Rick Mazzuto said Tuesday, one day before the Lancers were to play Wake Forest (22-4). But, he added, "I really think Mike is the guy that can get it done."

Longwood is in the second year of a four-year process it expects will end with the NCAA granting them Division I status in 2006-07.

The schedule includes 30 games against Division I opponents and with a team that has four freshmen, four sophomores and one junior on scholarship.

REDSKINS | Defensive lineman Jermaine Haley was released by the Washington Redskins on Tuesday after two disappointing seasons with the team.

The Redskins signed Haley to a four-year, $4 million contract and gave the Miami Dolphins a seventh-round draft pick to acquire him as a restricted free agent in 2003. But Haley was never an effective force on the line, managing just 22 tackles and one sack in 19 games.

The Redskins also released offensive lineman Vaughn Parker, who played in just one game in 2004 after joining the team in late October. (AP)

Listen to The Music

Or not. The British phenoms are modest about self-promotion

SOPHOMORE SLUMPS | One of the biggest bands in England, The Music, recently released its second album and is launching a headlining tour through the United States. It's an exciting opportunity to crack the all-important American market ... right?

"Um, no," said lead singer Robert Harvey. "I just want to play. I want to write songs. And if people don't like it, they don't need to listen to it."

Good thing the executives at Capitol Records aren't listening. Harvey also noted that The Music's latest album, "Welcome to the North," hasn't sold that well, and he's not entirely comfortable playing the songs live. In fact, he says, the new album isn't all that great.

Way to boost your career in the press! But Harvey said that's why his band chose the rather arrogant-sounding name.

"We owe it to music to keep things real for a while, and not allow the cynicism and the money and the business and the so-called fame to get the better of us," Harvey said in a gentle North England accent. "We're not saying we are the music. It's just the music is what's important."

What does The Music's music sound like? One frequent comparison is Led Zeppelin, perhaps because of Harvey's high, keening voice. But there also are hints of Oasis' giant pop hooks and the Verve's swirling sound.

Harvey said the band members (including Adam Nutter, Stuart Coleman and Phil Jordan) have influences from Motown to Nirvana to the Beatles. "But we've always said that our biggest influence is each day and each other and life itself."

The four friends from Leeds started as 16-year-olds making "noise," said Harvey, now 21. Their live shows and hard-to-define sound soon made them the U.K.'s Next Big Thing, but the band remains largely unknown in America.

The latest album may not change that. Under pressure from the label, the tour-weary band reluctantly flew to Atlanta and cut the disc with mainstream-rock producer Brendan O'Brien (Pearl Jam, Soundgarden).

"We're proud of it, but it's just not got through to people. And I think that's because we were trying to please people, instead of pleasing ourselves." RAFER GUZMAN (NEWSDAY)

Oscar Oddities

Q: What didn't you know about this year's awards?

1. Clint Eastwood initially passed on "Million Dollar Baby." The producer then sent it to another big movie star, who also turned him down. Who?

Arnold Schwarzenegger

2. If "The Aviator" wins for best picture, one of its four credited producers won't get an Oscar. Why?

The Academy allows only three producers to pick up a statuette, a rule instituted after five producers were awarded Oscars for 1998's "Shakespeare in Love."

3. Eastwood is up for three Oscars this year — for best picture, director and lead actor. But many believe he deserved a fourth nomination. For what?

Eastwood's score was not eligible thanks to a paperwork snafu.

4. Leonardo DiCaprio might have gotten lucky in playing Howard

GROUNDING: What ambition did Cage, Norton, Malkovich and Carrey share?

Hughes in "The Aviator" because several other actors were developing Hughes projects at the same time. Name one of the stars who dreamed of making a film about the tycoon but never got the chance.

Choose from Warren Beatty, Nicolas Cage, Jim Carrey, Johnny Depp, John Malkovich, Edward Norton and John Travolta.

5. The four stars of "Closer" took major pay cuts to make the movie. How much did each earn?

$1 million.

6. This year's foreign-language entry from Germany, "Downfall," was controversial in its native land. Why?

For making Adolf Hitler seem human. STEPHEN GALLOWAY (THE HOLLYWOOD REPORTER)

East Meets East on the Film Set

COLLABORATIONS | Zhang Yimou has wowed Hollywood with his dazzling martial arts movies "Hero" and "House of Flying Daggers," but the Chinese director is returning to the somber storytelling of his earlier films with his new work — a collaboration with a Japanese actor.

Zhang said Tuesday that directing Ken Takakura had always been his dream because the veteran 74-year-old Japanese actor had been his idol since childhood for playing silently enduring characters with a heart of gold.

"Qian Li Zou Dan Qi," which means, "riding alone for a thousand li" (300 miles), chronicles the China travels of a Japanese man who tries to complete a scholarly project for his dying son. The film is expected to be finished later this year.

"I've never worked with an actor who was so loved by every member in my crew," Zhang said.

filmmakers, Zhang has won several international film awards, including the Golden Bear Award at the Berlin International Film Festival for "Red Sorghum."

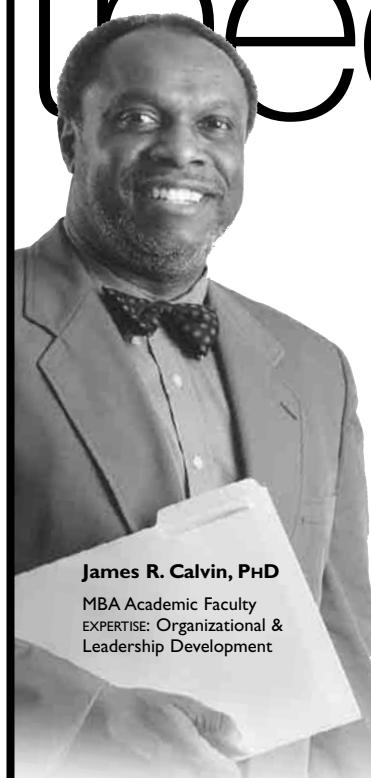

Takakura has appeared in Japanese yakuza gangster movies, tear-jerkers and samurai films as well as some Hollywood movies such as "Black Rain" and "Mr. Baseball."

Zhang's recent works, which feature video-game-like sword fights, marked a departure from his more realistic past films. The upcoming movie is less about acrobatic action than about sad human relationships.

Philosophy Minor

DVDS | Movies don't come much loopier than David O. Russell's "I (Heart) Huckabee." With a plot that involves existential detectives and Eastern philosophy, "Huckabees" whirls wildly in comedic circles that can either frustrate or fascinate.

The two-disc DVD includes enough supplemental material to fill a semester's worth of philosophy theses. The standard release includes only the two commentary tracks, so you have to get this version to see the bulk of extras.

MOST UNEXPECTED BONUS POINTS: The best deleted scene is the one in which Jason Schwartzman and Jude Law breakdance in the middle of the woods. Truly, you haven't lived until you've heard Jude Law rap.

BONUS POINT WITH MOST HOLLYWOOD CREDIBILITY: The behind-the-scenes production diary features Isabelle Huppert's incomprehensible attempt to explain the movie's meaning. On the other hand, it's still worth checking out to hear Spike Jonze conducting interviews with the stars.

FLAT-OUT FREAKIEST BONUS POINT: It's hard to fully describe the half-hour infomercial that explores, as

ANGST IN YOUR PANTS: Schwartzman and Hoffman face the great unknown.

Tomlin's character puts it, "the neat, fun ways you can rip your soul open." Let's just say that it features interviews with two distinguished professors (including Robert Thurman, inspiration for Hoffman's character); and everyone scooping out the innards of watermelons and stuffing them in their mouths. FAREWELL TO ME: Multi-tasking anchor Dan Rather is stepping down from the CBS Evening News and fittingly will control his own goodbye party. Rather stars in "Dan Rather: A Reporter Remembers," a broadcast memoir of his 50 years in journalism.

Braniac's Lament

SMARTS | Is super-intelligence a gift or a curse? Many people who are considered autistic have an incredible ability to focus on music, math, art and other subjects, but have little or no social skills.

"Brainman" (8 p.m., The Science Channel) spends an hour with 23-year-old Daniel Tammet, a highly functioning savant. He has many traits of autism, but is perfectly able to describe his remarkable relationship with numbers and language.

During the course of "Brainman," Tammet astounds a series of skeptics with his ability to do complex calculations in his head to decimal points far beyond the scope of calculators or even computers.

He made news recently when he spent five hours reciting pi to the 22,500th decimal point, a feat one witness described as a "near-religious experience." After a battery of tests with neurological researchers, Tammet took on more street-smart challengers, including New York chess hustlers and a Las Vegas blackjack dealer.

In a final astounding test, he set out to learn the Icelandic language a week before appearing on a live talk show in Reykjavik.

Experts theorize that Tammet is among a few dozen savants on Earth with such advanced abilities, and a rare genius who can actually discuss his remarkable gift. KEVIN McDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

BAGGAGE | Now that courier bags have been wholly co-opted by urban professionals, courier-bag purists have something else to resent: the embracing of non-courier bags by courier-bag makers. Sell-outs. (EXPRESS)

The only thing TIMBUKTU'S YOGA BAG has in common with a courier bag is a strap. But it sure is purty. And it has pockets for sweaty clothes, a water bottle and a yoga mat (duh). $100, in four colors, at timbuk2.com.

CHROME messenger bags are meant to courier things, not to act as briefcase surrogates. Chrome's laptop and DJ bags, however, are. The metallic SPUTNIK3 laptop bag, below, is $75 at chromebags.com. Throw in the matching cell-phone holster ($16) if you want to feel a little more hardcore.

In addition to messenger and laptop bags, CRUMPLER also offers 14 camera bags and backpacks with its trademark puzzling names (like "Budgie Smuggler" and "Company Embarrassment"). The I5 LOVE, above, holds four lenses and two camera bodies, plus accessories. $115, in five colors, at crumplerbags.com.

Food

Nutrition labels on eatery menus could be coming right up

Show nutritionists a 10-ounce restaurant hamburger and a side order of onion rings and have them calculate the calories. Easy, right?

Not exactly. Food experts consistently underestimated the 1,550-calorie meal — by an average of 685 calories — in a study of 200 dietitians by the Center for Science in the Public Interest and New York University. "If well-trained food professionals can't accurately estimate calorie content in a plate of food, you can be sure the average consumer is at a loss when looking at a menu," said Claudia Malloy of CSPI, which wants to force restaurants to provide nutrition information about their foods.

New Jersey is among a half-dozen states considering food labeling laws for restaurants. Under a recent proposal in the New Jersey

GROSS MISCALCULATIONS

How close were average expert caloric counts in CSPI's study?

→ PORTERHOUSE STEAK (20 oz.) with caesar salad (2 cups), vegetable (1 cup) and baked potato with 1 tbsp. of butter:

Estimated: 1,240; Actual: 1,860

→ LASAGNA (2 cups):

Estimated: 695; Actual: 960

→ GRILLED CHICKEN CAESAR SALAD with dressing (4 cups):

Estimated: 440; Actual: 660

→ HAMBURGER (10 oz.) and onion rings (11 rings):

Estimated: 865; Actual: 1,550

→ TUNA SALAD SANDWICH:

Estimated: 375; Actual: 720

Calorie Confusion

Assembly, chain and fast-food restaurants with 20 or more franchises would have to post calorie counts on menu boards, as well as extensive nutrition information, such as trans and saturated fats, salt and cholesterol, on menus. Similar legislation is pending in Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, Illinois and Hawaii, Malloy said, though no state currently has such a law.

To the New Jersey Restaurant

Association, such measures equal over-regulation. "The individual who is concerned about obesity should emphasize healthy lifestyle, personal responsibility, regular exercise and moderation," said Dale Florio, a lawyer for the group. "Seventy-six percent of all meals are prepared at home. That's where nutrition has to start."

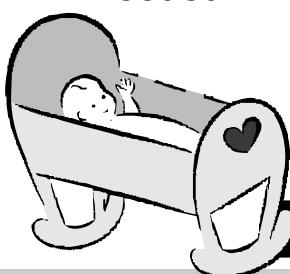

Many restaurants already make nutrition information available, though it's not always posted. Proponents say such data can help diners make healthier selections.

"This is a nice compromise between telling people what they should eat when they're out at a restaurant and giving them information so they have the power to choose," said Daniel J. Hoffman, assistant professor of nutritional sciences at Cook College in New Brunswick. ANGELA DELLI SANTI (AP)

ANDREA BONIOR, PH.D.

Guilt Tripping

How can a person let go of guilt? I was once involved with someone who turned out to be a real deadbeat/scam artist. People I know ended up doing business with her and got ripped off. I saw red flags I chose to ignore, and I can't help but think that if I'd ended my association with her sooner, I could have saved myself and others a lot of heartache (not to mention legal problems). I am consumed with guilt, anger and shame. — HIDING IN

AMES, IOWA

As long as you believe you can't move past this, you're your own scam artist. You fell for someone less than stellar — no high crime there — and you lived to regret it. Your task is to reframe this as the normal, human life experience that it was.

Your guilt comes from your belief that you should have let your head rule your heart. Well, let your head triumph now: You chose a path that taught you a lot about following your instincts, so you've gained something, not lost it. Write letters of regret to those who got ripped off and a letter of forgiveness to yourself. You're wiser now, and there's no shame in that.

My husband has a bad relationship with his father. His dad never calls, but complains that his son doesn't call him. My husband was the last to both call and e-mail, and now he says he doesn't need to make contact because it's his father's turn. We'd be happy to end the relationship if it weren't for other family members we'd still like to see. How do you handle someone you have to deal with but don't want to?

— GRRRRRRR, FALLS CHURCH

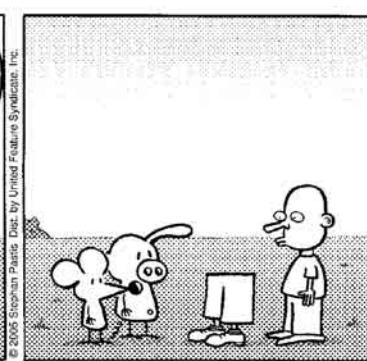

Detailed scorekeeping usually isn't the best family dynamic. As long as your husband maintains such even-steven expectations — ones that his father probably won't meet — it will be your husband who pays the price in frustration and heartache. He's got to come to terms, realistically, with the ways in which his father falls short, then adjust his expectations accordingly (one phone call for every three aside nine comments at a family gathering, etc.). So, how do you deal with someone who will always be in your life but who constantly disappoints you? The short answer: Lower the stakes and you'll no longer have reason to be disappointed.

Tourists Should Pitch In

HERE'S A WAY to take care of some of Metro's funding issues: The Smithsonian Institution should charge a $1 entrance fee per person to anyone who's not from the District, Maryland or Virginia and wishes to visit the museum. After all, many museums in the U.S. — except the Smithsonian — charge some kind of entrance fee and having visitors pay it is not unreasonable or unfair. Metro shouldn't always pass on the fare hikes to its regular passengers. For example, the Met in New York charges $15 per person. Charging just a dollar is nothing compared to that.

Now Scientists Hate You

CHRIS ROCK wants to clarify what he meant when he said straight men don't watch the Oscars. "I did not say that. I said only gay people watch the Tonys," he joked Monday on "The Tonight Show With Jay Leno." More Oscar thoughts: "The awards don't really affect anybody's lives in the crowd ... Meanwhile, the Nobel Peace Prize, there's no one there. Nobody cares what the scientists are wearing." (AP)

Translation: Band Is Bored, Wants to Roll In Piles of Money

BLINK-182 has gone on "indefinite hiatus," Reuters reported. Geffen Records said Tuesday that the trio have no plans to work together again. Singer-guitarist TOM DELONGE, singer-bassist MARK HOPPUS and drummer TRAVIS BARKER want to "spend some time enjoying the fruits of their labors with loved ones," the label said. The label continued: "While there is no set plan for the band to begin work-

Music World Rallies Against Tragedy of Ear Infections

R.E.M. bassist MIKE MILLS, left, has a severe ear infection, but should be well enough for the band to resume its European tour this week, MICHAEL STIPE said Tuesday. The band canceled a concert in England Monday. "Mike held out until the last possible moment because he didn't want to disappoint fans, but 45 minutes before we were due on stage I looked at him and realized there was no way he could go on," Stipe said. (AP)

R.E.M. has brought new awareness to the problem of adult inner-ear infections.

Blink-182 Upstages Jayhawks in Split-Up

The JAYHAWKS have apparently called it a day. Singer Gary Louris has confirmed that the alternative-country pioneers — formed in Minneapolis two decades ago — are no longer an active band. "I don't think we're going to do anything else," Louris told the Star Tribune. "We felt like we've done that enough. Everybody just wants to do something else. We haven't completely closed the door, but ... I'd say it's dead." (AP)

In Sum, DUI = Bad

"Growing Pains" star TRACEY GOLD, 35, appeared on "LARRY KING Live" Monday night for an hour-long talk about her Sept. 3 DUI, in which her husband and one of her sons were injured. A few samples follow. On jail: "It felt like a dream, a nightmare." On her mug shot: "It's surreal, absolutely surreal." On whether she's ever been drunk: "I'm sure once or twice. Sure. Absolutely." On drinking and driving: "It's not illegal to drink and drive, but there becomes a certain point where it does become a crime and it becomes illegal." (EXPRESS)

Yesterday's Solution*Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Not every look and every style is for you. Be sure that you make the impression that can best serve you in all situations.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll find great pleasure in the little things. Keep it simple, and don't get caught up in the complexities that surround you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may be feeling like getting away from it all before your week has really begun. There are things you can do for yourself now.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You may have to be more responsible than those around you if you expect everyone to stay on track and get things done on schedule.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's time for everyone to pitch in and work with greater dedication toward a common goal. You may have to gather the troops yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It may be time to turn over a new leaf; appearance, style and overall motives may have to change slightly to suit some new circumstances.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Take care you don't allow yourself to be rushed in any way. Care and dedication demand that you give every aspect of a project its due.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Don't refuse a friend the help he or she needs, but don't make the mistake of dropping what you're doing prematurely.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) It's time for you to get a little pickier about details. A major project is nearing completion, and you can't afford to miss anything.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) An early start does not necessarily mean an early finish — but at least you'll be able to get more done throughout the day.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You may find yourself enjoying what seems at first to be unpleasant. To each his own — and if it's unusual it's for you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You've been far too suspicious lately of those who honestly have nothing to hide. Perhaps it's you who has something to keep under wraps.
